

ABSTRACT

A clothing-friendly clip with a face member and a base member containing a mounting portion, each having a convex bend at a first end, pivotably connected to one another and biased so as to urge the first ends toward each other around the pivotal connection. A clothing-friendly clip with a face member that comprises a flat body with extensions extending perpendicularly from the sides, a base member with a flat body with extensions extending perpendicularly from the sides, the base member also having a mounting portion, wherein the face member and base member each have a convex bend at a first end and are pivotably connected to one another at the extensions, and wherein a coil spring located between the face member and base member urges the first end of the face member and base member toward one another. A personal document display comprising a clothing-friendly clip with a face member that comprises a flat body with extensions extending perpendicularly from the sides, a base member with a flat body with extensions extending perpendicularly from the sides, the base member also having a mounting portion, wherein the face member and base member each have a convex bend at a first end and are pivotably connected to one another at the extensions, and wherein a coil spring located between the face member and base member urges the first end of the face member and base member toward one another, and a document display mounted to the mounting portion of the base member.